Governor Jan Brewer Names Policy Advisor For Urban Outreach and Military Affairs

PHOENIX - Arizona Governor Jan Brewer today announced the appointment of Victor Daniels as Policy Advisor for Urban Outreach and Military Affairs.

"Mr. Daniels will fill a vital role on my outstanding team of policy advisors," stated Brewer. "His experience in community and urban outreach will prove invaluable in building relationships with organizations that represent minority interests. He will also serve as liaison to Arizona's military community and help maintain our State's strong commitment to our military members."

Mr. Daniels has an extensive background in community and government affairs. He joins Governor Brewer's executive staff after serving for several years as Community Affairs Manager for Qwest Communications, Northern Arizona region. In that role, he worked closely with numerous Arizona cities and counties, promoting Qwest as a community partner. He also promoted economic and workforce development and monitored and advocated Qwest's position in Federal and State telecommunications legislation.

Mr. Daniels also served as Northern Arizona District Coordinator for Congressman J.D. Hayworth. In that role, he served as Liaison for Native American Issues, Coordinator for Minority Business Development and Manager for constituent services relating to federal issues for Northern Arizona. Prior to that, he served as District Coordinator for Congressman James Rogan, 27th Congressional District in Pasadena, California. There he focused on minority outreach, managed constituent services relating to federal issues and served as liaison to local communities.

Mr. Daniels served as Arizona Co-Chair for African-Americans for McCain during the John McCain for President 2008 Campaign.

He received his Bachelor of Arts in Sociology from Arizona State University in Tempe, Arizona.
